

COLLEGE OF CONTINUING AND PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

August 9, 2009

Michael Santos
c/o Carole Santos

Dear Michael,

I am encouraged by the possibility that your long years of confinement may be nearing their end, and I want to get in line to invite you to some type of personal engagement with the students who have been reading your books and attending to your website as part of our courses in philosophy, ethics, and social thought.

It would be an honor to have you return to your undergraduate alma mater to reflect on your journey of service to the wider community and on the role this service has played in shaping your own perspective and commitments. You have certainly lived out the call of your own commencement address to make the decisions that will have the best possible effect on the future, regardless of the circumstances.

Your life is an inspiration to many, and we look forward to being able to celebrate that gift personally and to open a new and even more creative chapter in our educational task. As soon as we know what is possible in terms of schedule, we will work out the details.

Continued best wishes,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Colin".

J. Colin Harris

Professor of Religious Studies